

In This Issue:

Christian Receives Thomson Long-Term Achievement Award

Job Shadows on Groundhog Day

Introducing BWH Wellness Works... For the Health of It!

Feb. 14 PBS Heart Special Features BWH Experts

Reminder: Check Device Inspection Stickers

Profiles in Leadership Nancy Hickey, MS, RN

Obituary Lynn F. Rodriguez, RN, CCM, Care Coordination

Bulletin Bullets

BWH Completes Joint Commission Survey with High Marks

Send Print Feed

Job Shadows on Groundhog Day

Neurosurgeon Alexandra Golby, MD, left, and aspiring surgeon Asyaonna Clark, a junior at Madison Park Technical and Vocational High School, examine an MRI scan of the brain during a brain tumor removal surgery.

As part of the 12th annual Groundhog Job Shadow Day, BWH welcomed 19 students from three city high schools to shadow employees and learn about the many career opportunities available in a hospital. Students learned about respiratory care, nursing, cardiac perfusion, pulmonary and critical care medicine, human resources and radiology, among other fields.

Launched jointly by the Boston Private Industry Council and the Boston Public Schools in 1996, Groundhog Job Shadow Day was established to introduce Boston students to the world of work. The Boston Private Industry Council is a business-led intermediary organization that connects the youth and adults of Boston to education and employment opportunities. BWH President Gary Gottlieb, MD, MBA, is chair of the Boston Private Industry Council.

High school junior Asyaonna Clark looks up from the coronary artery bypass graft operation to observe an echocardiogram during last week's Job Shadow Day.

View a print-friendly version of the current issue

Send us a tip on some BWH news

About BWH Bulletin

BWH website

PikeNotes

Please note: Some links are available only to BWH and Partners employees.